

Hello, I'm Patrick.

I am with US Hunger.

Our mission is to feed families today and unite them for a healthier tomorrow.

We know hunger isn't just about food.

It is deeply connected to health.

Millions of Americans are not only struggling to put food on the table, but are also missing out on critical services that support their overall well-being.

That is why we built Full Cart Connect, an AI-powered platform that bridges the gap between food insecurity and health care.

Every year, more than $80 billion in public benefits go unclaimed.

Not because it isn't needed, but because the systems are confusing and hard to access.

Full Cart Connect changes that.

With just a short survey, individuals can share their needs.

And our platform uses social needs data and predictive matching to connect them to things like groceries, SNAP or Medicaid enrollment, or even prescription assistance.

It's not just tech for tech's sake.

It's a tool built with compassion, combining AI with human support to help people find long-term stability, not just short-term aid.

We're looking for like-minded partners to help take it further-refining our LLM models, expanding benefit matching, and scaling impact with the right partner.

We can scale our program to address additional SDOH classification codes that automate benefit matching and referrals, turning one-time aid into long-term stability.

The future of hunger relief is AI-driven and proactive.

Together, we can harness the power of AI to bridge the gap between food and health care, helping families live healthier and more sustainable lives.
